Instructions for passage (next five questions) : Read the passage carefully and choose the correct answer from the given alternatives.

I was late bloomer and always envied those people who stood out in high school because I didn't. I learned early on thought that it's essential to set yourself apart from the group. Life is one struggle after another to succeed, particularly when you're starting out. If your biodata is sitting at the bottom of a pile of junk mail, sometimes a distinctive approach will get you noticed, especially if the competition is fierce. Once my partner Jerry and I asked the other freelance writers of a TV serial what characters they hated to write for the most. Everyone said the same thing- they disliked writing for the minor characters because they thought that writing for them wouldn't help them get other jobs. Jerry and I decided that we would write scripts for the minor characters because that's what was needed and we needed to set ourselves apart. In the first script Jerry and I wrote a schoolgirl falls in love with a boy in her class. The producers loved the story. And with that one script, Jerry and I were no longer just another comedy-writing team.

Instructions for passage (next five questions) : Read the passage carefully and choose the correct answer from the given alternatives.

The very survival of mankind depends upon the survival of wildlife forests, in which they live. Thus the following two measures need to be taken to stop their exploitation by the poachers and traders. First,we should provide more teeth to the legislation to deal with the offenders. Destruction of wildlife should be made a criminal offense. Secondly, we should involve the local people in the protection of wildlife in protected areas instead of displacing them or putting curbs on their means of livelihood such as collection of minor forest produce. No one knows the local flora and fauna better than these people and no one is more capable of catching the poachers as was admirably demonstrated by the Bishnois sometimes back in Rajasthan.

31. How can we involve local people in the protection of wildlife and forests?

A. by involving them properly.
B. by allowing them to collect minor forest produce.
C. None of these.
D. by arming the local people.

32. Which two measures can prove very effective in saving our forest and wildlife?

A. catching poachers and sending them to jails.
B. curbing forest exploitation and trading of forest produce.
C. giving more teeth through legislation and involving local people.
D. patronising local people and punishing outsiders.

33. How best can we deal with the offenders of wildlife?

A. by enacting a new law.
B. by issuing warning to poachers and traders of forest produce.
C. by better vigilance of forests and wildlife.
D. by making destruction of wildlife a criminal offence.
